« I have always been a fan of the manual gearbox when on track in my C7 Z06, but after the stock gearbox failed for the 3rd time, I decided to move to a SADEV sequential manual. It promised to be faster shifting and eliminated the worry of mis-shifting on flier laps. What I got was a very reliable system that always gives me the right gear. The gearing provided me with close enough ratios to guarantee that I'm always firmly in my power band. The positive feeling of an upshift is compounded by a sensation that can only be described as though I had just launched a ballistic missile at the car ahead of me. »
